

I am not in favor of allowing Low Power FM stations to take precedence over current FM translator services. K-LOVE is a station which is often aired over FM translator services and provides family friendly programming to Omaha, Nebraska and many other cities throughout the U.S. If K-LOVE was forced off the air, the spiritually based, family friendly programming would be lost for many communities nationwide. We sorely lack such positive programming in most venues today, and the FCC should be socially responsible enough to allow such freedoms to be maintained. I know a lot of families that depend on K-LOVE to provide programming that their children can listen to and be positively influenced by, unlike many of the FM pop music stations today. We need more stations like K-LOVE, and far less that would support personalities like Howard Stern. If you want to do the right thing, you will allow stations like K-LOVE to remain on the air and not force them off the air by allowing LPFM to overtake those that depend on FM translator services simply because they are not-for-profit or providing a public service. Thank you for your time and consideration of this matter.
